HandyCapable Network Receives Piedmont Triad Business Award

Greensboro Mayor's Office Presents HandyCapable Network with the Small Business
Employer of the Year Award

Greensboro, North Carolina: On Thursday, May 20, the Mayor's Committee for Persons with Disabilities awarded HandyCapable Network (HCN) Employer of the year for a small business. Every year the Committee recognizes exceptional Greensboro businesses (large, medium and small) for their advocacy, leadership, commitment and vision towards supporting people with disabilities in the workplace.

With seven "Handy Techs" refurbishing computers, HCN exemplifies a small business that sees the "ABILITIES" of special needs individuals. "We are excited and honored to be recognized for our efforts" states Barbara L Davis, Executive Director.

HCN, a non-profit organization, offers a computer refurbishment training program which enables individuals with various disabilities to thrive in a work-related environment. The Handy Techs completely format all computers, replace faulty hardware, and install specialized software.

Refurbished computers are distributed to economically disadvantaged families and schools in the Greensboro area. HCN partners with businesses, other non-profits and donor organizations to meet its mission of promoting self-sufficiency and enriching the lives of people with disabilities.

For individuals and organizations interested in helping HCN make a difference in the community, consider donating needed funds and computers. The financial need is great in these difficult economic times. Visit <http://www.handycapable.org/index.cfm> for more information.

Other non-profit groups with technology needs such as setting up networks, troubleshooting computer problems or computer training can contact HCN's sister organization HandyCapable Solutions (handycapable@gmail.com) for low cost technology assistance.
